Poland and Japan have both given attention to collaborating with their shared neighbours at opposite ends of Eurasia. The Centre for Eastern Studies (OSW) in Poland focuses its attentions in that direction, while the Slavic-Eurasian Research Centre at Hokkaido University has been organizing symposiums on Russia and China for decades.

In light of Russia's war on Ukraine, these two Centres, supported by the Polish Embassy in Tokyo, have come together to host a joint seminar on the effects and fallout of the conflict in international relations, politics and economics. We invite our colleagues to join us for the event, and aid us in seeking possible solutions to the current crisis.
