

List of Contributors

Note 1: Japanese names are listed with surname first.

Note 2: Russian scholars often refer to the kandidat degree as a doctorate or Ph.D.

ZAYNABIDIN ABDIRASHIDOV is a senior lecturer at the Faculty of Uzbek Philology, National University of Uzbekistan. He was a foreign visiting fellow at SRC (2014–2015). His research interests are centered on the late 19th and the beginning of 20th centuries Turkestan and early Soviet Uzbekistan history. He is currently working on intellectual history and the development of postcolonial thought and intellectual change in Turkestan. His recent publications include Ismail Gasprinskii and Early 20th Century Turkestan: Communication–Relations–Influences (Tashkent: Akademnashr, 2011 in Russian); Annotated Bibliography of Turkestani Materials in the Newspaper Tarcumān (1883–1917) [Central Eurasian Research Series No. 5] (TIAS, The University of Tokyo, 2011 in Russian).

JELENA GLIŠIĆ is a doctoral student at the Department of International and Advanced Japanese Studies at the University of Tsukuba (Japan). She is a recipient of Japanese MEXT scholarship. Her research interests include international relations during the Cold War period, Japan's diplomacy after World War II, and Japan's relations with Eastern European countries.

SERGHEI GOLUNOV is a professor at the Center for Asia-Pacific Future Studies of Kyushu University (Japan). He was a foreign visiting fellow at SRC (2014–2015). He is an author of The Elephant in the Room: Corruption and Cheating in Russian Universities (Stuttgart: Ibidem Verlag, 2014) and EU-Russian Border Security: Challenges, (Mis)Perceptions, and Responses (London: Routledge, 2012). His research interests include border studies and conspiracy studies.

MARIA HRISTOVA is an assistant professor of Russian in the Modern Languages Department at DePauw University. She specializes in contemporary Russian and South Slavic cultures, particularly the rise of religion, ethnonationalism, and contested memorial sites. Her most recent publications include the co-authored article, "Language and Conflict: Minority Rights in Contemporary Serbia, Croatia, and Macedonia," Balkanistika 28 (2015) and a special edited volume on Macedonian cinema for KinoKultura (summer 2015).

BAKHTIYOR ISLAMOV is a specially appointed professor of the GSEBA at Hokkaido University. He was a foreign visiting fellow at SRC (2013–2014). He specializes in economics of transition and development. His publications include the monograph The Central Asian States Ten Years After: How to Overcome Traps of Development, Transformation and Globalisation (Tokyo: Maruzen, 2001), and an article "The Central Asian States 20 Years After: The 'Puzzles' of Systemic Transformation," Acta Slavica Iaponica 35 (2014).

IWAMOTO KAZUHISA is a professor at Wakkanai Hokusei Gakuen University. He is the author of Olesha and Soviet Literature (Tokyo, 2003 in Japanese); Russian Literature in the New Century (Tokyo, 2007 in Japanese); Freud and Dostoevsky (Tokyo, 2010 in Japanese). His research interests include Soviet and post-Soviet literature and culture.

NAKACHI MIE is a research associate at SRC. A historian of modern Russia, she has published on family, gender, population politics, and medicine. Her monograph Replacing the Dead: The Politics of Reproduction and Demography in the Soviet Union is forthcoming from Oxford University Press and her comparative co-edited volume Reproductive States: Global Perspectives on the Invention and Implementation of Population Policy (OUP) appeared in 2016.

BEATRICE PENATI is an assistant professor of history at Nazarbayev University (Kazakhstan). She was a JSPS post-doctoral fellow at SRC (2009–2011) and a Newton fellow of the British Academy in Manchester (2012–2013). Her research focuses on agricultural change, living standards, taxation, and economic policy in Central Asia in the Tsarist and early Soviet periods. Her recent publications include “The Cotton Boom and the Land Tax in Russian Turkestan (1880s–1915),” Kritika 14:4 (2013).

DAVID L. RANSEL is the Robert F. Byrnes professor emeritus at Indiana University. He has published nine books on Russian history, including A Russian Merchant's Tale (2009). Ransel edited the Slavic Review 1980–85 and The American Historical Review 1985–95. From 1995 to 2009 he was director of the Russian and East European Institute at Indiana University. He is currently at work on an oral history study of civic identity and social attachments of the last Soviet and first post-Soviet generations of workers in the industrial suburbs of Moscow.

IRINA SEDAKOVA is a leading research fellow at the Institute of Slavic Studies, Russian Academy of Sciences (Moscow). She is the author of the book Балканские мотивы в языке и культуре болгар [Balkan Motifs in Bulgarian Language and Culture] (M.: «Индрик», 2007). Her research interests include Slavic and Balkan linguistics and cultural anthropology, language unions, ethnolinguistics, Soviet vs. Russian languages.

VLADIMIR SHISHKIN is head of department at the Institute of History, Russian Academy of Sciences, Siberian Division (Novosibirsk) and a professor at Novosibirsk State University. He was a foreign visiting fellow at SRC (1998–1999, 2011–2012). His recent publications include Сибирский предпарламент: частные совещания членов Временной Сибирской областной думы (июнь–август 1918 г.) (Новосибирск, 2013); Письма во власть в эпоху революции и гражданской войны (март 1917 – май 1921 г.) (Новосибирск, 2015); Совет министров Российского правительства: журналы заседаний (18 ноября 1918 – 4 января 1920 г.). В двух томах (Новосибирск, 2016).

VERA SMIRNOVA is an independent researcher who previously taught a number of courses in Volgograd State University and in Volgograd State Medical University. She is an author of a textbook Теоретические подходы к анализу принятия внешнеполитических решений (Volgograd: изд-во ВолГУ, 2012). Her research interests include international cooperation in higher education and conspiracy theorizing in Russia.

DILIARA M. USMANOVA is a professor of Russian history at the Kazan Federal University (Russia). She was a foreign fellow at SRC (2014-2015), as well as visiting researcher at Humboldt University (SFB-640, HU Berlin, 2009-2011). Her research interests include the history of Imperial Russia, history of Muslims in Russia and visual history. She has published a number of articles and five individual monographs including Мусульманские представители в Российском парламенте, 1906-1916 [Muslim Representatives in the Russian Parliament, 1906-1916] (Kazan, 2005); Мусульманское «сектантство» в Российской империи: «Ваисовский Божий полк староверов-мусульман» 1862-1916 гг. [Muslim Dissident Sects in Imperial Russia: The Vaisi Holy Regiment of Muslim Old Believers] (Kazan, 2009).